Record number of visitors today!

Harrogate Nursery Fair opened its doors to a record number of visitors today, all eagerly arriving to view the latest new launches to the baby products industry. Historically, the first day of the show is always popular with smaller independent retailers and this year has been no exception with buyers arriving from across the country.

The Baby Products Association judges were out in force perusing numerous fabulous new and innovative products entered into the Baby and Nursery Trade Awards – the winner will be announced during a prestigious ceremony this evening.

If you didn't make it to the show today – make sure you take the opportunity to visit the show at the Harrogate International Centre tomorrow between 9.30am and 6.00pm or on Tuesday from 9.30am to 4.00pm.

Goody two shoes

Pre Shoes is a new and exciting company owned and managed by Susie Warner and is exhibiting for the first time at the Harrogate Nursery Fair.

Developed to be fun and original as well as warm, comfortable and safe – the anti-slip suede soles are suitable even on slippery wooden floors. They are easy to put on to even the wriggliest customer and Susie has successfully created delightful motifs equally suited for boys and girls. Particular favourites are hard to find, as they are all so delicious.

The shoes are soft and durable; the designs have that unique designer touch to them that make them so appealing to anyone with a special little somebody to buy for. The shoes make ideal gifts for any small child from newborn, up to two years old and will appeal to everyone.

The leathers are specifically chosen for their fine quality and she has become a member of the British Leather Technology Centre to ensure that all her leathers have been rigorously tested, as she believes that only the best materials are good enough for her designs.
