

Weather won't affect plans

Despite national weather warnings with snow forecast for many areas of the country, Harrogate has been fortunate to avoid the worst and the Nursery Fair team are confident that visitors should have no problems arriving safely at the show.

Adrian Sneyd comments: "There has been just a light flurry in Harrogate today which hasn't settled and certainly hasn't affected travel plans for exhibitors arriving for set up. According to the Met Office there may be further light snow showers tomorrow. However, again this looks unlikely to settle and the forecast is dry and fine for the duration of the show from Sunday to Tuesday."

Kalencom returns to the UK

After a short absence from the UK, Kalencom changing bags are now back and will be showcased at this year's Harrogate Nursery Fair by 2012 Ltd. Kalencom is a popular and trusted brand from the USA that encompasses fresh and fashion forward designs and styles without compromising on practicality.

There's a new Tote in Town

Lucie Trinco is flying halfway around the globe to be at this year's Harrogate Nursery Fair. The creator, designer and director of Il Tutto, commented: "The UK is our fastest growing European market and I'm looking forward to showing off our spring collection at my favourite European fair." New Spring styles include the bang up to date and newest Tote in town – Frankie and the simply gorgeous After Baby bag fashioned out of buttery soft washed leather. Both are perfect for style savvy mums who don't want to stop wearing a gorgeous bag just because they now have a family.

The Personal Touch

Raggy-Tag comfort blankets have become even more exclusive, presenting an embroidery service to individual customers and Raggy-Tag stockists.

As a manufacturer and retailer, Raggy-Tag has the unique ability to offer this value-added service, making purchases extra special with a personal touch.

By embroidering the child's name and / or date of birth before the comfort blanket is sewn together, the product retains the handmade quality finish that has made Raggy-Tag the first choice for newborn baby gifts and keepsakes.
